Hi, guys! In this short post I'm going to tell you about good online resources of learning English. Of course there are many of websites related to this subject, but I want to tell you about those of them which I use.

I've been learning English for one year and I checked lots of websites out, but stopped on only several of them. I use them currently and I'm going to keep using. So here they are:

1) BBC Learning English.

One of the best services of learning English. There is so much useful information there: grammar, video lessons, podcasts, vocabulary, general English, business English etc. I really like this website, especially its podcasts! There is a great number of podcasts about different topics.

So use this service. It's a great one! And it's free by the way. Enjoy!

2) InterpalsPenpals.

A very good social network for those people who learn languages. Just sign up and find new friends who learn English. Also you can find there native speakers learning Russian and help each other. It's very powerful. I've got acquainted with many good people there and now we keep talking.

So check this out! It's free as well!

3) SharedTalk.com

A great website where you can chat with people or talk to them on voice chat absolutely for free! It lets you a cool chance to improve your speaking skill! If you want to talk, just go to the voice room and call anybody. I often use this website, it's a good one! Keep in mind;))

4) EngVid.com

It's absolutely amaaaazzziing one!!! A group of teachers from Canada help people to learn English making awesome video lessons absolutely for free! I like them and always watch their lessons! Great people and experienced teachers! Check this out, guys.

5) Lingualeo.ru

A pretty popular resource about learning English. It's just fun to use this website because of its construction. It's kind of «Jungle» where you're offered to get to. It's nice, interesting and useful! But, unfortunately, it's not free. For more detail just go there.

6) Chine232.com

A good website of two brothers Add and Andy! They teach people English making podcasts about different kinds of topics! Many of them are free. Also they keep their blog about learning English. Check this out! To tell the truth I recently opened it for myself and it seems to be cool.

It's going to be a bit difficult for those who just start learning, because it's in English. But anyway, keep it in mind.

That's it, my friends. These websites help me a lot and I hope they're going to help you too.

Enjoy learning English and take care!
